

During periods of pandemic and economic unrest (such as the world recently experienced), the individual is handicapped, not alone by inherent nature to be slow at reaching decisions, but he/she is influenced by the indecision of others around us who have created a state of mass indecision including the “government”.

